Jersen Construction Group

Success Magazine: Rose, how long have you been with Jersen Construction Group?

Rose Sanders: I have been with Jersen for eight years.

SM: What is your title? What does this mean in terms of your daily responsibilities?

RS: The title on my business card is office manager; my daily responsibilities vary. I assist project managers with whatever tasks they bring my way. I support the estimating department with the ordering of plans and specifications and bid-day packages. I fill out prequalification paperwork when required to bid a job or to be used as a marketing tool. I process the field labor payroll and month-end union reporting for six different union crafts. I help out wherever else I'm needed.

SM: What do you most enjoy about your career with Jersen Construction Group?

RS: I enjoy that every day is different. Not being able to predict how the day is going to go just makes it more interesting. Some days can be stressful, but it's all worth it in the end.

SM: From your perspective, what makes Jersen such an industry standout?

RS: We truly have a great team.

Jody Marchin

Jersen Construction Group

Success Magazine: Jody, what is your function within the company?

Jody Marchin: My job title is controller; I keep track of our monies, incoming and outgoing (AR, AP, and PR), including all required weekly, monthly, quarterly, and annual reporting. I work with auditors as required. I also have a strong background in Timberline, the accounting/job costing software we use. I set up new jobs and provide job cost reports to project managers and owners as requested. I am the HR person; I manage our health care enrollments and contributions as well as COBRA compliance, and I manage 401K enrollments and weekly contributions. I am in the position where most employees know they can always ask me and, at the very least, I will point them in the right direction.

SM: How many years' experience do you have?

JM: Seems like I have been "pointing" my whole life. I've been doing the rest of this for about fifteen years.

SM: How would you describe Jersen Construction Group, as a place and employer?

JM: Jersen is a family owned business. We started small and grew to where we are today by applying family values to business relationships—"Be fair, honest, and work hard."

SM: What one thing would you like people to know about Jersen?

JM: I have found Jersen to be challenging, interesting, and a fun place to work. We are a strong, growing company with knowledgeable, reliable key personnel in place to deliver quality, on-time projects. It's a good place to work and a good company to complete your next project.
